It is stated that the compositions were all well written and showed thought. The prize essays will appear in The Breckenridge News next week.

Miss Keith, who won the prize in group I, is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Proctor Keith, and Miss McKaughan likewise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McKaughan.

CIRCUIT COURT

ADJOURNED

Until July 8, on Account Jury Losing Valuable Time in Farm Work. Names of Grand Jury.

Court convened promptly at 8 o'clock A. M. Monday morning at Hardinsburg. The unusual formality of hearing motions and calling the docket consumed the first hour. At 9 o'clock the petit jury was called and 23 of the members responded for service. Expressions were heard from practically all of them and after the members of the bar and Judge of the court discussed the matter the following order in substance was entered by Judge Layman.

"It appearing to the satisfaction of the court that a majority of the members of the Petit Jury will sustain great loss if required to serve on the jury at this time, and that there will be a loss sustained to the government in production it is now ordered that said jury be excused from service at this term and a Special Term of the Breckenridge Circuit Court is hereby called to begin on July 8, 1918 and continue for three consecutive weeks, excluding Sundays, for the trial of all cases now pending on the dockets or said court to which turn all actions now so pending on the dockets of said court to which turn all actions now so pending are continued and which is done with the unanimous consent of the bar present.

The following composed the Grand Jury: Jim Dean, foreman; Felix Butler, J. R. Critchlow, C. B. Norton, Steve Haynes, John Galloway, Joe Robertson, M. D. Drane, John Bishop, Henry Burden, P. H. Canary, S. S. Galloway.

CANADIAN TO LECTURE HERE

Thursday Night in the Interest of the Red Cross War Fund Drive. Only 6 Weeks off the Battle Front.

In view of the National Red Cross War Fund Drive for $1,000,000,000, the local Chairman, W. T. Chapin, has secured the services of a Canadian speaker, fresh from the battle front, who will lecture here Thursday evening at the Baptist church in the interest of the drive and to help arouse enthusiasm for raising Cloverport's quota of $2,500.

The Canadian, whose name is not known, only landed in America a few days ago, coming right from the battle line, where he was probably wounded and disabled for fighting. It will be a real treat for the people of Cloverport and surrounding vicinity to hear him and a very large crowd is expected to attend the meeting.

A civilian will accompany the Canadian soldier and they will be at Irvington Wednesday night and Hardinsburg Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Chapin has appointed the following chairmen:

For publicity, Mrs. Harry Hamman; solicitors, Mrs. W. H. Bowmer; War Fund Cashier, Mrs. Hovious Behen; Depository Fund, Breckenridge-Bank of Cloverport.

TAKEN AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Wife of Mr. Richard Mattingly Succumbed Sunday Morning. Survived by Six Children. Burial From St. Rose.

Mrs. Bridget Sherran Mattingly, wife of Richard Mattingly, died at her home in the East End Sunday morning of kidney trouble. She had been ill since last July.

The funeral was held from the St. Rose church Monday morning at eight o'clock and the interment followed in the St. Rose grave yard. Rev. J. S. Henry had charge of the service.

Mrs. Mattingly was the daughter of the late Patrick Sherran and she was a life long resident of this city. She would have been sixty years old in September.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Mattingly is survived by six children; three daughters, Mrs. Austin Pate, Misses Katie and Ivy Mattingly. One daughter, Miss Lorena Mattingly who was an operator at the local Cumberland Telephone office, died just a few years ago. Three sons, Hillary, William and Leo Mattingly. A brother, Dennis Sherran who lives near here.

Resignation.

I wish to announce to the public that I have resigned as a Director of The Bank of Hardinsburg & Trust Co., I wish to have the pleasure of serving you in any way I can in the future. I wish to thank my friends throughout this and the adjoining counties for the many kind favors shown me in the past.

For the present my office is next door to Walker's Bakery, and hope to have the pleasure of my friends calling on me at any time they are in town. Assuring you it will be a pleasure to do any thing I can for you in the future I am.

Yours very truly,
Paul Compton,
Hardinsburg, Ky.

WITH THE HOME BOYS IN SERVICE

News From Camp Logan.

The following letter of interest has been received from one of Breckenridge county's boys whose home is at McQuady, but he is now at Camp Logan, Houston, Texas. Editor of The Breckenridge News:—"I want to say that I am serving my country and have been for some time. I have a lot of friends and school-mates that don't hear from me but I still think of my old Kentucky home. I haven't been home for two years and I have had quite a few experiences through my few little travels.

But I must say I had a piece of luck when I enlisted in my outfit, as it is a good one and I never met boys I liked better; I know when I get over there with the bunch, that I will be with a sticking bunch as we are taught to stick together. The boys are all from Chicago, Ill., except some drafted men who were transferred to our outfit from Camp Grant, Illinois.

I am in the machine gun company, 131st Infantry, formerly the old Dandy 1st Illinois Infantry. Our regiment is the model regiment of 33rd Division and they can deliver plenty of lead balls at Kaiser Bill. Six footers too, if they only give us a chance, which we are expecting any day. If we only have a chance to travel across No Man's Land, it will be our delight.

I was in my company seven weeks when I was made first-class private and now I am in Q. M. D. for a while, can't tell how long as I am taking a mechanics place while he attends a Machine Gun School which is conducted in camp. We are on the Machine Gun Range and have been for two months, in fact, we built the place out of about 15 acres of prairie but it is a regular park now and can handle three battalions they are all shooting 620 shots to the minute it sounds as if there was an attack on at the front line trenches. We have been in Texas seven months and have had a nice mild winter. We played ball Thanksgiving Day. We have drilled hard and worked hard but we have good food and that is all a soldier can ask of Uncle Sam. Just so we have good eats, we should not worry, as we know it is up to us to get trained as it takes it to win the war, and the 131st has the goods and we can show them a trick or two when we get "over there".

Yours truly,
Andrew C. Ball,
131 Inf., M. G. Co.,
Camp Logan.

From Van Atwell in France.

Mrs. Ina Pate, of this city, and a sister of Van B. Atwell, who is somewhere in France, received a letter from him some few days ago which is published herewith:

Dear Sister:—

March 19, 1918.
I will write you again. Well, I am well and working hard both day and night but I don't mind that for these little pop guns we have here won't let me sleep for the noise they make is great. We can hear the signal ring all around us and then we are to return one back to them.

I received a letter from mother today. Oh! how glad I was, how sweet it was to get a letter from home! But I am here to help win the old glory for I have the strength and power God gave me to carry me through.

Give everybody my address and tell them hello for me.

From,
Van B. Atwell,
France.

May 7th, 1918

Dear Mr. Babbage:—

We entered camp Monday afternoon at sundown, after having a long and impatient wait at Irvington; a special took us in about 4 p. m., then we started on our speedy journey to Camp Zach, arriving at the time mentioned above. We were hiked nearly three miles (most of us carrying heavy hand grips. We were issued mess kits and blankets that night, our straw beds were filled and our cots, ready for a good restless night.

Received our quarantine instructions next morning, are in quarantine for three weeks, allowed in an area of nearly 300 yards square, the Y. M. C. A. and Canteen are across the dead line but we can go to them. The Y. M. C. A. furnishes amusements, books, magazines, writing material and will assist you in most any way.

We have put in some drill work, took a few hikes of short distance, perhaps round trip would be eight miles, all would come in feeling glib. Received a shot in the left arm Saturday, all laid up Sunday with sore arm, all the soreness not gone at present, still getting ready to take Bill's scalp.

Uniforms came in Thursday, not much system to handing them out, you go in, some guy will say what size shoe, you tell him, then he grasps a pair of cow hides, gives you a trial at them, if they touch your feet they jerk it right off and sling you a pair from two to three sizes larger, you take that; next comes your trousers, ask you the size, perhaps you will get a forty or you might get a thirty, if you get a fit you are in luck, when it comes to underwear they ask you nothing, you can exchange with your friend if you so desire, and they want you to do the trading with the fellow that has a misfit; if you cannot get a swap, make about three trips to the supply department and you will get something you cannot tell, you might have a worse outfit when you do this than you had at first; to show I know, to my personal knowledge, I have one pair trousers waist 35, one pair 30; one shirt 14½, one shirt 16; as to underwear, I can get it, don't you worry.

In regard to Hooverizing, we failed to do that trick last Sunday. I will give you the list for dinner:—beans, potatoes, turnips, lettuce, onions, jelly, pie, cake and ice cream, to run this down we had lemonade and I assure you that one time we did not fail on double time.

Very sincerely

Wm. G. Vessels

Brigade, Camp Zachary Taylor.

Arrived in France.

The parents of James Pate, Will Tate, Jr., and Sherman Gibson, have received the soldiers' regular mailing card announcing their safe arrival overseas.

These three Cloverport boys were called in the first draft in September and were members of Co. M, 335 Infantry while at Camp Zachary Taylor.

Dr. Clarence DeWeese, of — has received the appointment as Captain of the Medical Reserve Corps, Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Iowa.

Herbert Smith, of Fordsville, who enlisted in the Navy, leaves this week for Chicago to enter the Naval Training Station located near that city.

J. A. Head, private, Co. M, 335 Inf., Camp Zachary Taylor, has charge of the Directory Force in his company for the next twelve months. Priv. Head spent Sunday at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Head, Lodiburg.

W. Simon Smart is with the Base Hospital, Medical Department, Unit 13, Camp Zachary Taylor.

Virgil A. Babbage, who left April 29 for Camp Zachary Taylor, has been assigned to Co. E, 2nd Battalion, 159th Depot Brigade

Smokeless Powder.

The advantages of smokeless powder, besides its virtue of high explosiveness, are two-fold. It does not create a smoke cloud that betrays the location of the gun or gunners, and at the same time the man behind the gun is not confused for a second by a pall of smoke that obscures the range of vision in the direction of the enemy.

COMMENCEMENT OF C. H. S.

Opened With Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday Evening. Class Day Tuesday and Close With Commencement Friday at Methodist Church.

Sunday evening last, the Rev. W. L. Baker of the Methodist church delivered the annual baccalaureate sermon to the 1918 graduating class of the Cloverport High School in the Baptist church. This service marked the opening of commencement week was followed by the Class Exercises Tuesday evening at the American Theatre and closing with the Commencement Friday evening May 17, at the Methodist church. Prof. McHenry Rhoads of Frankfort, who is the State Inspector of High Schools will be here to deliver the address to the graduating class.

Rev. Baker had for his subject Sunday evening, "Christian Education Necessitated by the World War." Rev. Baker brought out the fact that a nation as well as an individual could not live unto itself but that it should prepare and teach its inhabitants the value of service to other nations and not be continually self seeking. He gave as a concrete example, the German Nation. A heavy down pour of rain hindered the large crowd which usually attends the baccalaureate services every year, from coming out on this occasion.

Those to be graduated are: Miss Aubrey Beavin, Miss Maydee Chapin, Miss Martha Reid, Miss Zivola Kramer, Miss Jane Lightfoot and Mr. John Duke.

The graduates have selected for their flower girls, six little girls from the graded school. They will be: Misses Rubie Wood, Katherine Phelps, Aliene Biles, Addie Belle Couch, Elenor Martin and Dorothy May.

RED CROSS SOCIETY

Has the War Touched You.

A law has been passed at Washington requiring a man in the army to give part of his pay to his wife or children, or other near relatives who have been dependent upon him. The Government will also give them a family allowance while the man is in service. The Cloverport Chapter of the Red Cross has a Home Service Section where such information for the families of enlisted men may be obtained. You may come and find out, free of charge all about your rights under this new law.

The Home Service Section is glad to be of service to you in this way and stands ready to help or advise you in any matter which may be troubling you because of the absence of a man from your family.

Mrs. Frank Mattingly, Chairman; Miss Elizabeth Skillman, Secretary; Mrs. George Mullen, Treasurer; Mrs. Frank Ferry, Mrs. A. N. Couch, Mrs. Larkin Gibson, Mrs. Lucien Chapin, Mrs. Harry Hamman, Mrs. H. Brook-locker.

Junior Red Cross.

The Junior Red Cross met Saturday afternoon with a nice, large crowd and added eight new members making a total of 103. We are growing.

The youngest member now is little Ella Watkins Conrad, age 4 months.

Let the babies join the Red Cross Baby Roll.

Under the supervision of Miss Lenora McGavock the Junior Red Cross boys started their War Garden Saturday afternoon and they are very enthusiastic over it. It is to be hoped they will raise lots of beans, tomatoes, corn and potatoes.

For the next ten days Mr. John Carson, agent for the Louisville Post, has offered to give to the Junior Red Cross 10c on every new subscriber to the Post. Here's wishing him lots of new subscribers and many thanks to him.

Mrs. J. Proctor Keith,
Supt. Junior Red Cross.

The Civilian Relief Committee of the Irvington Red Cross Chapter, sent Miss Sarah Johnson to an eye specialist in Louisville and she is staying at the Norton Infirmary being treated.

The philanthropic work of the Civilian Relief of the various Red Cross Chapters over the county is most note worthy.

Mrs. Virginia Rogers of this city has planted a war garden and she is tending it herself. Mrs. Rogers says that the money she makes from selling the vegetables goes to the Cloverport Red Cross Society.

Has 4 Brothers in Service.

While Mr. Lewis Cohen, the proprietor of the Golden Rule Store in this city and whose home is in Jeffersonville, Ind., is not in active service for Uncle Sam, he is quite well represented by his four brothers and one sister who are serving the Government.

One remarkable thing about Mr. Cohen's brothers is, they are all commissioned officers. Dr. David Cohen is Captain of the Medical Corps, Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga; Capt. Sutton Cohen, is a member of the Engineers Corps, Ft. Benjamin Harrison; Lieut. Melvin Cohen is with the Engineers at Camp Lee, Georgetown, Va., and Geo. Cohen ranks as Lieutenant in the Welfare Workers of New York City. Miss Blanche Cohen is with the U. S. Quartermaster Depot, Jeffersonville, Ind.

TWIN BABIES.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartles Sterrett, of Skillman, Ky., are the recipients of many congratulations on the arrival of twins, a boy and a girl on May 7. They have been named Mabel Angie and David Ross.

The father of the twins is the nephew of Mrs. John A. Ross, of this city, and the twin boy was named for Mr. Ross.

FRENCH DEFEAT HUN IN PICARDY

Score Gains Near Ypres and Amiens; Advancing Near Loere and Montdidier.

BIG BOMBARDMENT OF FRONT

Troops of Tricolor Hold on Grivesnes Park, on the Front South of Somme, Is Still Secure.

London, May 13.—French troops advanced their line slightly east of Loere, on the Flanders front, the war office announces. The statement follows:

"French troops advanced their line slightly east of Loere and captured several prisoners. We carried out successful raids during the night west of Merville and brought back a few prisoners and machine guns. A raid attempted by the enemy east of Ypres was stopped by our fire."

Pals, May 13.—Heavy artillery fighting on the front below Amiens, in the region of Grivesnes and Mailly-Raineval, is reported in the official communication. The French gained ground on the southern side of the Picardy front, near Orvillers-Sorel, southeast of Montdidier. The statement says:

"During the night very spirited artillery fighting continued all along the front in the region of Grivesnes and Mailly-Raineval. North of Grivesnes our troops carried out a raid and took 15 prisoners. In a local operation at Mareuil wood, northwest of Orvillers-Sorel, we made an appreciable gain in ground. Thirty-nine prisoners and several machine guns fell into our hands. A German counter-attack was broken up completely by our fire."

"French detachments made several incursions into the German line, especially southeast of Montdidier, Northeast of Thiaucourt, in the sector of Sapignol and in the Woivre, taking prisoners and material."

Foe Held in Leash.

Germany's attacking troops are still held in leash while the big enemy guns bombard heavily the allied lines on the Flanders and Somme battlefields. Southwest of Ypres the Germans have not attempted to repeat the futile attack of Wednesday against the French and British between Voormezeele and La Clyette. The German artillery fire along this line, however, is violent.

On the southern leg of the Lys salient the Germans are bombarding the Roheq sector and also are paying attention of the British position about Vimy ridge, on the Arras front. On the Somme battlefield the British have engaged in some local fighting around Aveluy wood, between Albert and Arras, and Berlin claims the repulse of a local British attack here.

French Retain Gains.

The French hold on Grivesnes Park, on the south front of the Somme, is still secure. The Germans are shelling the new French positions intensely, but have not attempted counter-attacks in force.

West of Montdidier, American gunners have been bombarding the Germans in the villages of Cantigny and Mesnil St. Georges, fires resulting. South of this sector the German guns have been active between Noyon and Lassigny.

American troops on the sector Northwest of Toul assisted the French in a successful raid into the German positions in Apremont forest Friday. The American guns aided the French, and east of the raided section American patrols made a diversion by entering the village of Apremont, which was found to be deserted.

Active artillery firing is going on in some sectors of the Italian and Macedonian fronts. There also have been patrol engagements on these fronts, but no heavy fighting.

RUSH TROOPS TO UKRAINE

Disturbed Conditions There Force Kaiser to Hurry Cavalry from Western Front.

London, May 13.—The situation in the Ukraine has become so disturbing that the Germans have dispatched large detachments of Bavarian cavalry from Flanders to the Ukraine, the correspondent at Amsterdam of the Exchange Telegraph company reports. Word that fighting is to be resumed in the Ukraine has been received from Liege, Belgium. The Bavarian cavalry detachments are said to have arrived at that city.

POET DIES IN BOWERY HOUSE

Neil McDonald, Once Editor, Essayist and Rich, Ends Life as Hobo in New York.

New York, May 13.—The body of a man who was found dead in a Bowery lodging house has been identified at the morgue as that of Neil McDonald, poet and essayist and former editor of the Scottish-American. A graduate of the University of Edinburgh, he settled in Canada more than 50 years ago and became wealthy through mining operations. When his fortune disappeared he drifted to New York. He was seventy-five years old.

Manufacturers of the State of Kentucky.

The manufacture and distribution of ice comes under the United States Food Administration and the Control Act of August 10, 1917.

The Food Administration is concerned with the price charged for ice in the various communities and require each Company dealing in or manufacturing ice to file with the Administration any proposed schedule of increased prices over the prices in effect last summer before such increases are put into effect.

Only such increases as are justified by increased costs will be permitted and in addition only such adjustment as between the different classes of consumers as the situation may require.

The Food Administration has sought the cooperation of the Mayors of Kentucky cities to investigate any proposed increases in price and determine the justification in each instance, and has notified them that if satisfactory scales of prices cannot be obtained from the dealers the Food Administrator will apply the necessary corrective measures.

Harry Howard Obituary.

Harry Chapin Howard was born in Cloverport, Kentucky June 11, 1892 and died at his home near Sylvia, Kansas, April 11, 1918 age 25 years and 10 mo. He was married to Sadie R. Durkee Jan. 23, 1918. He was taken sick about two weeks ago. His suffering was intense but he bore it patiently to the end. Harry was a young man of fine character loved by all who knew him. He was converted during revival meetings at the Nazarene church last October and remained a true christian unto the last. He often expressed himself as being physically weak, but that his soul was all right. He leaves a wife, Sadie R. Howard, father A. L. Howard, mother Mertie Howard, four brothers Paul, Allen, Carl and Joseph, and one sister Eloise, to mourn his early departure. One sister, Ruth precedes him to the better world.

The funeral was held at the Nazarene church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock conducted by Rev. Lord and the body was laid to rest in the Fairview cemetery. The entire community extends sympathy to the bereaved family.—The (Kansas) Sylvia Sun.

In Memoriam.

Virginia Spencer Trowles Penick, born Feb. 10, 1849 near Greensburg, Ky., died April 28, 1918 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. P. Romine and Mr. Romine of Hardinsburg. She was the daughter of Eli Odum Towles, her parents dying in early childhood she was reared by her uncle, Judge D. T. Towles, Greensburg, Ky. She was educated in her home town by such men as Profs. Bachanna, Dodd Hamilton and others and grew up to womanhood possessing a winning disposition and fine traits of personality, winning friends in every community in which she associated, she was happily converted in early womanhood under the ministry of Rev. Dennis E. Spurrler in the M. E. church South at Greensburg and at once united with the church of which she remained a true and faithful member until released by death. In May 1869 she was married to R. H. Penick, of Breckinridge county where she has since lived uniting immediately with the Custer church.

To this union were given ten child-

Mrs. Penick's health had been on a decline for two years although under treatment of the best physicians of the county, both allopath and osteopath. Her husband, Mr. R. H. Penick took her to Hardinsburg to the home of their daughter, Mrs. Romine hoping a change of home conditions would be a benefit, but a higher power saw otherwise. From the day she came one month ago their was a gradual decline until death released her. An impressive funeral service was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Romine by Rev. Hurtman continued at the Good Hope grave yard near Custer by her pastor, Rev. E. P. Deacon. It is estimated that three hundred people were present at the burying.

MAN AND WIFE GETS BENEFITS

Louisville Woman Says Tanlac Brought Health to Husband and Self.

"Tanlac has brought health to both my husband and myself, and I'm glad to tell others about what this medicine has done for us," said Mrs. Nora Breaden, 224 West Jefferson street, Louisville.

"My system was all run down. I didn't have a bit of energy or ambition, and I was getting nervous all over. I didn't sleep very well at night and didn't get my rest like I should. As a result I felt bad and my housework was hard for me. My appetite was poor and I didn't eat very much.

"My husband wasn't feeling very well, either, and he started taking Tanlac. It helped him quickly, and he started feeling so much better that I began taking Tanlac, too."

"It was just like a race between us after that—a race back to good health. We each took three bottles of Tanlac, and we both are enjoying good health again now. I think I feel as well as I ever did, and my husband says he does, too."

If you are not feeling right, get Tanlac at Wedding's Drug Store.

Value of Forage and Pasture for Hog Feeding

Through the use of suitable forage and pasture crops, pork can be produced at a much lower cost than when pigs are maintained in dry lots on expensive concentrates alone.

Spring pigs will thrive amazingly on good pasture, such as rye, clover, sorghum, rape, alfalfa and cow peas, supplemented with our Liquid Feed.

Not only do pigs on pasture make cheaper gains, but the exercise they obtain is an important aid in keeping them thrifty and in good health.

Why not feed a pig instead of a dog; one is a producer and a direct assistance in winning the War and can be fattened on the waste from the average family or the refuse from a city garden; the other (dog) is a parasite that serves no useful purpose whatever.

Buy Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps; subscribe to the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus and other war activities and raise pigs; these are patriotic duties, and are essential for winning the war.

Men and Women of America! "O, you must—you must—give more!"

The Red Cross Nurse! Glorious product of the war!

Her spirit is calling to you from bleeding France.

She sees the coming millions of American manhood! She knows they must suffer even as their brothers in arms have suffered.

She knows you are willing to help, but oh she is so afraid that you simply can't realize the appalling need for Red Cross aid, and the necessity for you to sacrifice and give and give and give till it hurts!

American Red Cross nurses by the thousands; French, British, Italian Red Cross nurses by the tens of thousands—all are there—giving their strength, their health, their lives.

The least you can do is to have your money there—nursing and saving broken men, and helping poor, starving, homeless little kiddies.

Your first Red Cross contribution was there in time—NOW how much?

"Oh you must—you MUST—give more," says the spirit of the Red Cross nurse—glorious, unselfish product of the war.

In millions of loyal American homes women are going to make some definite sacrifices, and pledge to Red Cross the equivalent of several days' household expenses during June, July, August and September, and this in addition to the male subscription in the house.

Are you going to be one of those women? Can you be any other kind of a woman in this our country's gravest crisis?

FARM AND STOCK.

The splendid rain of last Saturday and Sunday came just at a time when it was badly needed. Sod ground that had been plowed was getting hard and crusty. It is now in a good condition to harrow and put in good order for planting.

The tobacco crop promises to be one of the largest in years. Growers are increasing their acreage about two-thirds as compared with last year's planting. In some sections of the county complaints are made of a shortage of plants early in the season. But since the rains and sunshine, this fear has all ceased and the plant scare is a thing of the past. There are plenty of plants now for setting and the farmers will be on the firing line this week sticking plants with a vim.

Tobacco is selling now away above what was anticipated. The market is strong and active with prices soaring. The present crop in this county is nearly all sold and very few crops are in the hands of producers.

Recent sales of Burley on the Louisville market went as high as $50.50; 12 hogsheads of Oldham county averaged $44.50 and dark sold up to $18.25.

Beard Bros., made a purchase at Glen Dean of 350,000 pounds of dark at $16 round, cleaning up all the crops in the hands of the farmers. They have rented the Moorman & Howard warehouse at Glen Dean where they will redry this purchase. They sold their entire holdings to M. J. Reynolds & Co., Winston Salem, N. C., where this tobacco will all be shipped. This is the first entry of this large firm in this market which means much for our market. Glen Moorman has charge of the handling of this purchase.

Oscar Haynes, of Union Star, made a good sale of his crop of 11,000 lbs of Burley to W. J. Schopp, Stephensport, at $33 round. Rev. H. S. English sold his crop of 8,000 pounds of Burley to Mr. Schopp at $33 and John B. Gibson 5,000 pounds at $30.

A. M. McCoy, Union Star, sold Byron Parks three 10-months-old steers for $147.50.

Proctor Roberts has 14 ewes and 13 lambs. He thinks they will round him up over $500.

Glen Moorman, Glen Dean, has bought several fleeces of wool at 60 cents per pound.

The largest source of profits for European farmers is from sheep raised on land valued from $300 to $350 per acre. Here in Breckinridge county we have land valued at from $10 to $40 per acre that will produce just as good sheep. Thousands of acres are absolutely idle, doing nothing, not even paying taxes, when they could be brought into a profitable paying business. Wake up farmers and go to it. Take a lesson from across the seas and help win the war.

Sheep are noted scavengers. They rid the fields of pests and fertilize and build up the soil and fit it for corn and other products. Frank Carter tells us that he is not going to sell a ewe from his flock this Spring. That he will keep them for breeding next year. Mr. Carter knows that it pays to raise sheep. He has built up an old run down farm with sheep, cattle and hogs, made a good living, paid for his farm and his land is now worth double what he gave for it.

A sheep sale that set the record for Canada was recently held at Buford, Ontario. Most of the sheep were bought by buyers from the United States. Ninety-seven head of Shropshires were sold for $6,000. The highest priced ram lamb sold for $200; the top price for ram was $315, the highest price ever paid for a Shropshire ram in Canada at auction. The top price for a pair of Shropshire lambs from one ewe was $212.50. We want to see the time when lambs bring that price in Breckinridge.

H. A. Dutschke, Stephensport, sold the Government 1,400 bushels of wheat and ground it into export flour. He was the only miller in the county who had wheat to turn over to the Government.

Rev. H. C. Truman, Fordsville, attended the Annual meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic which met at Covington, Ky., last week. Brother Truman has not missed a meeting in forty years.

VERY PROUD OF MARY

Mary Elizabeth Crabtree takes pride in the fact that she is mascot of the National Educational association. The organization is very proud of her, for Mary is not only a charming little girl but an ardent patriot. At the present she is sealing the envelopes which contains the call of Mary C. C. Bradford, president of the association, to the teachers of the country urging their aid in a campaign to increase the junior membership of the Red Cross. The money she is earning by this work she says she will invest in war savings stamps. Mary believes every boy and girl in the nation should buy war savings stamps and help increase the junior membership of the Red Cross. If the boys and girls do their part, she says, they will be a big help in winning the war.

TELLS OF HUNS' WORK

Invalided Sergeant Describes Atrocities Committed in France.

Indescribable Brutality Revealed When Highlanders Capture Village Near Ploughestreert Wood.

San Francisco.--Indescribable atrocities, which even the brutal Hun might not be thought capable of, were committed in France recently and discovered when the vallant Seaforth Highlanders captured a small village near Ploughestreert Wood, according to Sergeant A. Goad of the Highlanders, who has been invalided to America with three wounds.

"When we took the village I happened to look into a hut, still standing among the ruins, and there saw the most horrible sight that I have yet seen in my war experience," Sergeant Goad said.

"Against one wall was the dead body of a woman, her hands crossed above her head and nailed to the wall by a spike. There were no other wounds on her body--she must have been left there to die from torture.

"Opposite her, against the other wall, was a little three-year-old child, with its head impaled on a sharp hook and its limp little body hanging down. The two had doubtless been crucified at the same time and left alone to watch each other's death agonies.

Sergeant Goad said that some time later the British took Ploughestreert Wood, but were driven back temporarily, and when they recaptured it a score of wounded, whom they had been unable to rescue, had been savagely slain.

FASCINATION OF AIR LIFE

First Trip in Army Airplane is Thriller Apart From Everything Else in Life, Says Flier.

An aviation student in one of the Western schools declares that the sensation of the first trip in one of the government's aircraft is not to be compared with anything else he ever experienced. He explained it thus:

"I wish I had the ability to describe the fascination of this work of learning to be the cavalry of the air, or eyes of the army, or anything else one chooses to call us.

"Let me tell you that your first trip in an airplane is a thing apart, absolutely new and different from any experience that you ever had.

"You climb into the bus with your sweater and your leather helmet and goggles, looking like something you would throw a raw fish to if you saw it in a cage, and the lieutenant shoves on the power and you go bumping and bouncing along the ground with a big wind in your face and the 'prop' spinning out in front like a Dutch windmill gone crazy.

"Then suddenly the bumps are gone and you go whirling swiftly and steadily up into the clear air and sunshine and the earth falls away like a fade-away on a movie screen and the foolish little people on the ground turn up their white faces at you as you go over.

"I hope I don't get mumps or liver complaint or some fool thing that will keep me out of it all. This is my pet fear more than that of taking a fall or getting smashed into."

Thousands Die of Heart Disease. Heart disease still leads the nation's mortality lists, causing 114,171 deaths during 1916, according to vital statistics regarding 70 per cent of the country's population. Tuberculosis claimed 101,896 victims and pneumonia 98,434. Suicides numbered 10,162, which is far below the average for the past ten years.

School trustees will be called upon to organize their school districts and appoint committees to make a house to house campaign, and these trustees must respond and use every effort that each community may come up with its share.

Lightning at Sea.

When proper precautions are taken ships at sea are in no danger of being destroyed by lightning. Of all the dangers that beset the seaman, lightning is the only one that he can guard against with perfect thoroughness. Permanent conductors, properly arranged, offer the most complete protection from the electric fluid.

Before this fact was well understood, lightning was a very frequent cause of damage to shipping. In 1808 to 1815 no fewer than seventy vessels of the English navy were entirely crippled by being struck. It was a no uncommon thing for vessels to be set on fire so completely by lightning as to defy extinction, with the result that those on board who were not killed by the electric discharge in many instances probably lost their lives through being unable to let down the boats before the fire reached them.

CHAPTER VIII.

On the Mountain Road.

The low gray car which carried the chancellor was on its way through the mountains. It moved deliberately, for two reasons. First, the chancellor was afraid of motors. He had a horseman's hatred and fear of machines. Second, he was not of a mind to rouse King Karl from a night's sleep, even to bring the hand of the Princess Hedwig. His intention was to put up at some inn in a village not far from the lodge and to reach Karl by messenger early in the morning, before the hunters left for the day.

Then, all being prepared duly and in order, Mettlich himself would arrive, and things would go forward with dignity and dispatch.

The valley of the Ar deepened. The cliff rose above them, a wall broken here and there by the oft-appearing narrow ravines, filled with forest trees. There was a pause while the chains on the rear wheels were supplemented by others in front, for there must be no danger of a skid. And another pause, where the road slanted perilously toward the brink of the chasm, and caution dictated that the chancellor alight, and make a hundred feet or so of dangerous curve afoot.

It required diplomacy to get him out. But it was finally done, and his heavy figure, draped in his military cape, went on ahead, outlined by the lamps of the car behind him.

He was well around the curve, and the cliff was broken by a wedge of timber, when a curiously shaped object projected itself over the edge of the bank, and rolling down, lay almost at his feet. The lamps brought it into sharp relief—a man, gagged and tied, and rolled, cigar shaped, in an automobile robe.

The chancellor turned, and called to his men. Then he bent over the bundle. The others ran up, and cut the bonds. What with cold and long inaction, and his recent drop over the bank, the man could not speak. One of the secret service men had a flask, and held it to his lips. An amazing situation, indeed, increased by the discovery that under the robe he wore only his undergarments, with a soldier's tunic wrapped around his shoulders. They carried him into the car where he lay with head lolling back, and his swollen tongue protruding. Half dead he was, with cold and long anxiety. The brandy cleared his mind long before he could speak, and he saw by the uniforms that he was in the hands of the enemy. He turned sulkily silent then, convinced that he had escaped one death but to meet another. Twenty-four hours now he had faced eternity, and he was ready.

He preferred, however, to die fully clothed, and when, in response to his pointing up the bank and to his inarticulate mouthings, one of the secret police examined the bit of woodland with his pocket flash, he found a pair of trousers where Nikky had left them, neatly folded and hung over the branch of a tree. The brandy being supplemented by hot coffee from a patent bottle, the man revived further, made an effort, and sat up. His tongue was still swollen, but they made out what he said. He had been there since the night before. He was of Karnia, and a king's messenger.

"I was coming back from the barrier," he said thickly, "where I had carried dispatches to the officer in charge. On my return a man hailed me from the side of the road, near where you found me. I thought that he desired to be taken on, and stopped my car. But he attacked me. He was armed and I was not. He knocked me senseless, and when I awakened I was above the road, among trees. I gave myself up when the snow commenced.

Few pass this way. But I heard your car coming and made a desperate effort.

"Then," asked one of the agents, "these are not your clothes?"

"They are his, sir."

The agent produced a flash light and inspected the garments. Before the chancellor's eyes button by button, strap on the sleeve, star on the cuff, came into view the uniform of a captain of his own regiment, the grenadiers. Then one of his own men had done this infamous thing, one of his own officers, indeed.

"Go through the pockets," he ordered sternly.

Came into view under the flash a pair of gloves, a box of matches, a silk handkerchief, a card case. The agent said nothing, but passed a card to the chancellor, who read it without comment.

There was silence in the car.

At last the chancellor stirred. "This man—he took your car on?"

"Yes. And he has not returned. No other machine has passed."

The secret service men exchanged glances. There was more to this than appeared. Somewhere ahead, then, was Nikky Larisch, with a motor that did not belong to him, and wearing clothing which his victim described as a chauffeur's coat of leather, breeches and puttees, and a fur greatcoat over all.

"Had the snow commenced when this happened?"

"Not then, sir. Shortly after."

"Go out with the driver," the chancellor ordered one of his men, "and watch the road for the tracks of another car. Go slowly."

So it was that, after an hour or so, they picked up Nikky's trail, now twenty-four hours old but still clear, and followed it. The chancellor was awake enough by this time, and bending forward. When at last the trail turned from the highway toward the shooting box at Wedeling, Mettlich fell back with something between a curse and a groan.

"The fool!" he muttered. "The young fool! It was madness."

At last they drew up at an inn in the village on the royal preserve, and the chancellor, looking rather gray, alighted. He directed that the man they had rescued be brought in. The chancellor was not for losing him just yet. He took a room for him at the inn, and rather cavalierly locked him in it.

The chancellor sipped hot milk and considered. Nikky Larisch a prisoner in Karl's hands caused him less anxiety than it would have a month before. But what was behind it all?

At a little before five the man outside the prisoner's door heard something inside the room. He glanced in. All was quiet. The prisoner slept heavily, genuine sleep. There was no mistaking it, the sleep of a man worn after long cold and exhaustion, weary after violent effort. The agent went out again, and locked the door behind him.

And as the door closed, a trap door from the kitchen below opened softly under the sleeping man's bed. With great caution came the landlord, head first, then shoulders. The space was cramped. He crawled up, like a snake out of a hole, and ducked behind the curtains of the bed. All was still quiet, save that the man outside struck a match and lighted a pipe.

Half an hour later, the chancellor's prisoner, still stiff and weak, was making his way toward the hunting lodge.

Kaiser saw him first, and found the story unlightening. Nor could Karl, roused by a terrified valet, make much more of it. When the man had gone, Karl lay back among his pillows and eyed his agent.

"So Mettlich is here!" he said. "A hasty journey. They must be eager."

"They must be in trouble," Kaiser observed dryly. And on that uncomplimentary comment King Karl slept, his face drawn into a weary smile.

But he received the chancellor of Livonia cordially the next morning, going himself to the lodge doorstep to meet his visitor, and there shaking hands with him.

"I am greatly honored, excellency," he said, with his twisted smile.

"And I, sire."

But the chancellor watched him from under his shaggy brows. The messenger had escaped. By now Karl knew the story, knew of his midnight ride over the mountains, and the haste it indicated.

Karl himself led the way to his study, ignoring the chamberlain, and stood aside to let Mettlich enter. Then he followed and closed the door.

"It is a long time since you have honored Karnia with a visit," Karl observed. "Will you sit down?"

Karl himself did not sit. He stood negligently beside the mantel, an arm stretched along it.

"Not since the battle of the Ar, sire," replied the chancellor dryly. He had headed an army of invasion then. Karl smiled. "I hope that now your errand is more peaceful."

For answer the chancellor opened a portfolio he carried, and fumbled among its papers. But, having found the right one, he held it without opening it. "Before we come to that, sire, you have here, I believe, detained for some strange reason, a Captain Larisch, aide-de-camp"—he paused for effect—"to his royal highness, the crown prince of Livonia."

Karl glanced up quickly. "Perhaps, if you will describe this gentleman—"

"Nonsense," said the chancellor testily. "You have him. We have traced him here. Although by what authority you hold him I fail to understand. I am here to find out what you have done with him."

"Done with him?" echoed Karl. "If as Captain Larisch you refer to a madman who the night before last—"

"I do, sire. Madman is the word."

"He is a prisoner," Karl said, in a new tone, stern enough now. "He assaulted and robbed one of my men. He stole certain documents. That he has not suffered for it already was because—well, because I believed that the unfortunate distrust between your country and mine, excellency, was about to end."

A threat that, undoubtedly. Let the arrangement between Karnia and Livonia be made, with Hedwig to seal the bargain, and Nikky was safe enough. But let Livonia demand too much, or not agree at all, and Nikky was lost. Thus did Nikky Larisch play his small part in the game of nations. "Suppose," said Karl unctuously, "that we discuss first another more important matter. I confess to a certain impatience." He bowed slightly.

The chancellor hesitated. Then he glanced thoughtfully at the paper in his hand.

Through a long luncheon, the two alone and even the servants dismissed, through a longer afternoon, negotiations went on. Mettlich fought hard on some points, only to meet defeat. Karl stood firm. The great fortresses on the border must hereafter contain only nominal garrisons. For the seaport strip he had almost doubled his price. The railroad must be completed within two years.

"The Princess Hedwig," Karl said suddenly. "She has been told, of course?"

"Not officially. She knows, however."

"How does she regard it?"

The chancellor hesitated. "Like most young women, she would prefer making her own choice. But that," he added hastily, "is but a whim. She is a lovable and amiable girl. When the time comes, she will be willing enough."

Karl stared out through one of the heavily curtained windows. He was not so sure. And the time had gone by when he would have enjoyed the taming of a girl. Now he wanted peace—he was not paying a price for it?—and children to inherit his well-managed kingdom. And perhaps—who knows?—a little love. Before him rose a vision of Hedwig, her frank eyes, her color that rose and fell, her soft, round body.

"You have no reason to believe that she has—looked elsewhere?"

"None, sire," said the chancellor stoutly.

By late afternoon all was arranged, papers signed and witnessed, and the two signatures affixed, the one small and cramped—a soldier's hand; the other bold and flowing—the scrawl of a king. And Hedwig, save for the ceremony, was the bride of Karl of Karnia.

It was then that the chancellor rose and stretched his legs. "And now, sire," he said, "since we are friends and no longer enemies, you will, I know, release that mad boy of mine."

"When do you start back?"

"Within an hour."

"Before that time," said Karl, "you shall have him, chancellor."

And with that Mettlich was forced to be content. He trusted Karl no more now than he ever had. But he made his adieu with no hint of trouble in his face.

Karl stood for a moment in the open air. It was done, then, and well done. It was hard to realize. He turned to the west, where for so long behind the mountains had lurked an enemy. A new era was opening; peace, disarmament, a quiet and prosperous land. He had spent his years of war and women. That was over.

When he returned to the study the agent Kaiser was already there. But Karl, big with plans for the future, would have been alone, and eyed the agent with disfavor.

"Well?" he demanded.

"We have been able to search the chancellor's rooms, sire," the agent said, "for the articles mentioned last night—a card case, gloves, and a silk handkerchief, belonging to the prisoner upstairs. He is Captain Larisch, aide-de-camp to the crown prince of Livonia."

He had expected Karl to be impressed. But Karl only looked at him. "I know that," he said coldly. "You are always just a little late with your information, Kaiser."

Something like malice showed in the agent's face. "Then you also know, sire, that it is this Captain Larisch with whom rumor couples the name of the Princess Hedwig." He stepped back a pace or two at sight of Karl's face. "You requested such information, sire."

For answer, Karl pointed to the door. For some time after he had dismissed the agent, Karl paced his library alone. Kaiser brought no unverified information. Therefore the thing was true. Therefore he had had his enemy in his hand, and now was pledged to let him go. For a time, then, Karl paid the penalty of many misdeeds. His triumph was ashes in his mouth.

What if this boy, infatuated with Hedwig, had hidden somewhere on the road Olga Loschek's letter? What, then, if he recovered it and took it to Hedwig? What if—

But at last he sent for the prisoner upstairs, and waited for him with both jealousy and fear in his eyes.

Five minutes later Nikky Larisch was ushered into the red study, and having bowed, an insolent young bow at that, stood and eyed the king.

"I have sent for you to release you," said Karl.

Nikky drew a long breath. "I am grateful, sire."

"You have been interested for by the chancellor of Livonia, General Mettlich, who has just gone."

BORGUM ACCUSED IN AIRPLANE DEAL

Sculptor Charged With Criticizing U. S. Board to Help His Own Firm.

SOUGHT TO OUST MEMBERS

Documents Made Public at Washington Bare Alleged Plan to Use President Wilson's Help for Own Ends.

New York, May 13.—Gutzon Borglum, accused of having sought secretly to capitalize his friendship with President Wilson by undertaking to promote a private airplane company, issued a formal statement denying "any connection now or at any time" with any airplane production concern or any plan to organize a company.

Washington, May 13.—Documents made available from the official files of the government show that Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, whose charges against the aircraft program have led to the impending inquiry, as having been connected with negotiations for the establishment of a new aircraft-producing corporation, in which he was to be a silent partner.

Negotiations between Borglum, Hugo Gibson, connected with the British war mission in the United States, and Kenyon Mix of the Dodge Manufacturing company of Wisconsin, began last December, the documents show. A statement by Mix, included in the documents, tells how he withdrew after becoming suspicious of Borglum's activities and reported the affair to Howard Coffin, then head of the aircraft production board.

The documents which have been supplied from the official files of the war department and are now in the hands of senators most intimately connected with the aircraft investigation, declare that Borglum continued his negotiations after President Wilson authorized him to make an inquiry into the aircraft situation.

"Could Do Anything With Wilson."

A summary of the negotiations signed by Henry Harrison Supplee, who acted as consulting engineer for Mix, declares that Borglum was to be represented in the corporation by a Mr. Harris and that Borglum's "sole asset in the transaction was to be, first, his personal friendship and association with President Wilson, whom, he stated, he could do anything he wanted with."

Supplee's statement further declares that Borglum gave him to understand that the personnel of the aircraft board was "highly distasteful to him" and that he proposed to change it "by virtue of his friendship with President Wilson" and asked Supplee to suggest men for the places.

Senator Hitchcock, chairman of the aircraft subcommittee, said the committee had determined more than a week ago that Borglum's testimony would be worthless to them, and, therefore, the exposure would not halt the senate inquiry.

Reports of Borglum's activity in attempting to form an airplane company already had reached the committee, and Borglum himself, when asked to produce witnesses to substantiate his charges of profiteering and intimations of criminality in the development of aircraft, had failed to make good.

The Borglum exposure, however, appears to be complete, and it is disclosed that discovery of his personal interest in airplane matters caused President Wilson to withdraw all support from the Borglum aircraft inquiry and to appoint a commission headed by H. Snowden Marshall of New York to make a thorough investigation of the aircraft collapse.

BOLSHEVIKI FIGHT THE HUN

Reports of Improvement in the Eastern Situation Reach the British Capital.

London, May 13.—The Exchange Telegraph's Moscow correspondent says the Russian council of commissaries has received information to the effect that the city of Rostoff, on the Don (reported by Berlin to have been occupied by German troops Thursday), has been recaptured, the Germans being thrown back 30 miles. Russian cavalry is reported pursuing the Germans.

OSTEND FAIRWAY IS LOCKED

Aviators' Photographs Confirm Success of Blockade Enterprise of British Navy.

London, May 13.—British aviators have photographed Ostend harbor, confirming that Friday morning's enterprise against the submarine base was entirely successful and that the fairway is now blocked. The old cruiser Vindictive, which was sunk at the entrance to the harbor, was manned by 52 volunteers, including a lieutenant commander and four engine-room attendants who had taken part in the Zeebrugge attack.

Skiff Overturns, Eight Drown. Monongahela City, Pa., May 13.—Eight men were drowned and eight others narrowly escaped the same fate when a skiff in which the men were crossing the Monongahela river near here was overturned.

Precocious Youth Kills Himself Over Alleged Theft.

Boy Declared Chemistry to Be His Life's Sole Desire and Happiness.

London.—Few cases of suicide in recent years have attracted as much attention as that of Master Arthur Easterbrook, precocious son of a retired colonel in the British army. The youngster killed himself with cyanide of potassium. He had been experimenting in chemistry, to which he was devoted. He presumably was driven to his act by the discovery that he had taken some chemical apparatus from his school to his home. Although he had merely borrowed it, there was an insinuation that he was guilty of theft. A letter left by the boy is as follows:

"To whomsoever shall find this: 'Today will be my last day on this planet. I cannot stand the prospect of what is coming, so good-by, chemistry, my life's sole desire and happiness. What will happen afterward I cannot tell, but I hope that my spirit will travel to another planet and a God will forgive and let me have another chance.'

"Since New Year I have not touched anything, and just as I thought that the whole unhappy business was over this happens and utterly ruins my life. And I hope the verdict will not be 'temporarily insane,' because I am not.

"A last word. I should like my stuff that does not belong to the school to be given to F. W. Teare, in my form, 4A, at school. It will help him on in the work that I intended to follow.

"Good-by, mamma, the only friend I had, and I also hope that Leslie Wilson will remember me. So, good-by, chemistry, that I love and adore and die for.

"P. S.—God save my soul." His father asked the authorities for permission to preserve the letter, but the coroner said:

"I think it much better if you do not have such a tragic document."

KIT FOR EVERY SOLDIER

Red Cross Comforts Packed by Women for Each Man in Trenches.

Washington.—Every American soldier who enters the trenches carries an American Red Cross comfort kit packed by an American woman, Maj. James H. Perkins, Red Cross commissioner to Europe, announced in a cablegram to Red Cross headquarters here. The kits, which contain towel, shirt, writing paper, pencil, soap, handkerchief, socks, mirror and tobacco, have become a great convenience to the troops, says Major Perkins, who wants more of them, particularly ones with socks and tobacco.

WOMEN MAKE FINE RECORD

Red Cross Workers at New Berlin, O., Almost Double Supply of Articles Asked for.

New Berlin, O.—This village, where the residents are so patriotic they want the name changed, has another record for patriotic service. With about 250 women available the Red Cross workroom here has an attendance of at least 85 workers every day it is open. The women go at eight o'clock in the morning, eat dinner there, and do not leave until 10 p. m. They have turned out 80 bathrobes, where the government asked for only 50, and they did the work in two weeks, although they were allowed one month.

HAIR 64 INCHES LONG

The longest hair in the United States is the proud possession of a matron of Boston, Mrs. A. L. Budro, her glorious tresses measuring 64 inches, or 5 1/4 feet. Her trailing hair is the envy of all her feminine friends, and, while Mrs. Budro admits it is a tremendous task to keep such heavy tresses in proper order, she does not care to lose a single strand.

ROMANOFFS ARE HOUSED PLAINLY

Former Czar and Czarina Have No Gas, Electricity or Bathroom.

FARE OF MOST FRUGAL NATURE

Practically Condemned to the Life of Recluses—Daughters Allowed to Come and Go Freely, but Son Is Closely Guarded.

Paris.—Though things Russian are rather in disfavor just now, a short account of the life led by the Romanoffs, the former imperial family, may prove of interest.

Tobolsk has been called the "City of Death," its temperature rarely rising above the freezing point. Most of its houses are built of wood, the one where the imperial family lives being one of the few brick buildings in that part of the country. Its ground floor is occupied by a company of soldiers installed there as a guard. The two upper floors, consisting of 14 rooms most simply furnished, constitute the apartments of "Colonel Romanoff."

There is neither running water nor gas, neither electricity nor bathroom. The servants are obliged to draw from a nearby well the water needed for household purposes. The rooms are heated by brick ovens which burn wood. The largest room is not more than 16 feet by 10 feet.

The windows of the house look out on an unattractive landscape. There is not even a garden where the ex-czar might dig and forget his boredom. A narrow balcony and a courtyard inclosed by high brick walls furnish the only breathing spots for the imperial prisoners.

Live Life of Recluses.

Nicholas Romanoff and his wife are practically condemned to the lives of recluses. Their sole outing consists in attending mass at the cathedral of the Annunciation or at a neighboring monastery or going to the public baths, where as a special favor the revolutionary authorities permit them to bathe once a week. Whenever they go out they are escorted by a platoon of soldiers commanded by four officers of the guard.

The fare imposed upon the prisoners is of the most frugal nature. Once accustomed to the delicate refinements of French cooking, they are forced to be content with ordinary Russian dishes: pling, a sort of roll covered with caviar; bortsch, a thick soup made of beets and other vegetables; kalacha, a cheese paste.

The people of Tobolsk show neither hostility nor sympathy toward the exiled family. Life in the small town is consistently monotonous. The existence of the former emperor drags along in drab sadness. Now and then he is authorized to receive the visit of two faithful high functionaries whom the revolutionary government permitted to accompany him in his exile—Count Frederiks and General Voyekov. To them he confides his regrets, his memories and his hopes.

Nicholas Romanoff said recently to General Voyekov in an accent of profound resignation:

"Has my life not always been that of a prisoner? I do not regret my lost power. All I ask is to be allowed to retire to Crimea, where I could live surrounded by flowers. I feel more than ever that I would be peaceful and happy as a simple citizen of a republic."

His resignation in no wise is shared by the former Czarina Alexandra. Everything in her new mode of life wounds, shocks and irritates her.

Nowadays Alexandra devotes herself to her children, whom she teaches not to resign themselves but to remember. What makes her most indignant is that she is allowed neither to write nor receive letters that are not opened by the revolutionary officers. She constantly repeats to her daughters:

"Never forget what we are forced to bear at the present moment."

Her only confidante is Countess Narischkine, who was her lady in waiting and who was allowed to follow her to Tobolsk.

Alexis Closely Guarded.

If the grand duchesses are allowed to come and go freely in the town without the vexation of any surveillance, the same thing is not true of the ex-czarevitch. Prince Alexis, who is familiarly known as Alloscha, can go out and play in the public parks whenever he likes, but he is watched by guards specially attached to his person.

The daughters of the former czar lead a simple life. Grand Duchess Olga, the most serious of them all, has enrolled herself among the voluntary nurses of a military hospital to which are sent convalescents from Siberia and where she conscientiously passes several hours a day.

Grand Duchess Marie has taken up stenography and typewriting to help her father write his memoirs. But he dictates nothing and writes nothing. Sometimes he leans out of the only window, which overlooks the town, and watches his children when they go for a walk. He wears the undress uniform of a colonel of the Prebajensky and puts on a dignified air as soon as he thinks he is being observed. But when he thinks himself alone his back loses its stiffness, he hides his care-lined face in his hands and this man, whose hair has turned quite white, falls into melancholy brooding.

Did America's Pre-Columbian Civilization Come From Egypt? Is Now Question.

Prof. Elliot Smith developed in an extraordinarily interesting manner the thesis that the pre-Columbian civilizations of America—or at least many important features in those civilizations—were not truly aboriginal, but came in a cultural wave from Asia across the Pacific ocean, the original starting point of the most remarkable characteristic being Egypt.

Professor Smith believes, says Science Progress, that the extremely peculiar culture of Egypt was spread eastward by mariners, mainly Phoenicians, for several centuries after B. C. 800. To quote the author's own words, he thinks that "the essential elements of the ancient civilizations of India (the pre-Aryan civilizations), further India, the Malay archipelago, Oceania and America were brought in succession to each of these places by mariners, whose oriental migrations began as trading intercourse between the western Mediterranean and India some time after 800 B. C., and that the highly complex and artificial culture which they spread abroad was derived largely from Egypt (not earlier than the twenty-first dynasty), but also included many important accretions from other sources, and that after traversing Asia and Oceania and becoming modified on the way, the stream finally 'continued for many centuries to play upon the Pacific littoral of America, where it was responsible for planting the germs of the remarkable pre-Columbian civilization.'"

WAYS OF KEEPING YOUTHFUL

Man Who Is Determined Not to Grow Old Really Has Only to "Make an Effort."

I see it in my changing hair, I see it in my growing hair, My growing thirst for early news. It is a fact, I am growing old.

And so growing old is just a case of finding what one's looking for, observes the Minneapolis Journal. A man decides that the time has come for him to be old, and so instead of bracing up, ignoring the symptoms and finding some other explanation for the change in the color of his hair, he neglects his dress, walks with a stoop, uses a cane, stops taking exercise, eats too much, indulges in reminiscences, retires from business, and in general acquires the foolish habit of growing old.

He should remember that it is possible to keep a youthful spirit, an active mind, an interest in current events and a purpose to serve his fellows, and that he who does these things will always be young.

The fact that women generally decline to contract the old-age habit and that some men have also resisted the temptation to fall into it would seem to indicate that if those who do yield to it would only take the advice of Dombey to his wife, and "make an effort," they would learn how foolish and how unnecessary it is to grow old.

Henry Clay's Diplomacy.

The following is an instance of Henry Clay's readiness in getting out of a difficult situation. On one occasion a vote he had given in congress offended one of his constituents who unbraided him for it and declared he would never again support him for congress.

Meeting this constituent on the court green Mr. Clay said to him: "I am sorry you will not again support me for congress because of a vote I gave on a certain measure. When your rifle misses fire do you throw it away?" "No," replied the constituent, "I do not throw it away." "What do you do with it?" asked Mr. Clay. "Why, I pick my flint and try it again," replied the constituent. "Well," said Mr. Clay, "are you going to throw me away because I have missed fire once? Won't you let me pick my flint and try again? Won't you treat me as you do your rifle when it misses fire?"

This ready reply satisfied the constituent and completely won him over, and he was ever after one of Clay's most faithful supporters in his candidacy for congress.

Man Has Copied Nature's Work.

Marble, in nature, owes its crystalline structure to volcanic heat. But ingenious man uses heat to counterfeited the volcanic rocks. By such means, with suitable materials, he makes bricks and crockery, which are artificial stones. The processes employed in the manufacture of chinaware are merely workshop imitations of those used in the laboratory of nature.

For Those Fond of Parrots.

The voyage by steamship is very hard on parrots, which are stored in the hold, commonly in close proximity to the engine room. Consequently they are apt to reach their final destination in a sickly condition. One should be careful to make sure in buying an African parrot that it is a healthy bird. There are hundreds of species of parrots and the most beautiful of them all are the cockatoos, native exclusively of Australasia. The giants of the tribe are the American macaws. Neither the macaw nor the cockatoo is ordinarily much of a talker, but occasionally specimens are very clever at conversation.

If Swift & Company Made No Profit

The cattle raiser would receive only 1/8 cent a pound more for his cattle

So small is Swift & Company's profit on any single transaction that if it were turned over to the cattle raisers of the country, they would receive only 1/8 cent a pound more for cattle than they receive now.

Swift & Company pays for live cattle about 90% of the amount received for dressed meat and by-products. The remaining 10% pays for packing-house expense, freight to market, operation of distributing houses and profit. Swift & Company's actual figures per head for 1917 on over two million cattle were as follows:

Receipts		Payments		Profit Selling Freight Dressing
From By-products	$24.09
	26%
From Meat	$68.97
	74%
Total	$93.06
		Paid for Live Cattle	$84.45
			91%
		Total	$93.06

* This net profit of $1.29 per head averages 1/8 cent a pound live weight.

And out of this small net profit dividends must be paid to shareholders.
